

ABSTRACT

A dry cleaning process for removing native oxide at improved efficiency is disclosed. The dry cleaning process minimizes the amount of fluorine atoms 5 absorbed on the surface of a processed substrate. Fluorine radicals are provided to the substrate together with hydrogen radicals. The substrate is processed by the reaction of the fluorine radicals and the hydrogen radicals.